Prayer for the One Who Begins

DRAFT — pending clergy/educator review

Original text, not traditional liturgy. Wording lives in book/opening-prayer.txt.

Hineni — here I am.
I did not choose the road that brought me to this page,
but I choose to stand on it now.

I come not because I know, but because I want to know.
I come seeking or, light — not the whole of it,
only enough to read the next word.

There is no one among us who holds the whole truth.
We are all still learning the letters.
So I will not ask to be right.
I will ask to be honest,
to be patient with my own mistakes, and to make a little more right in the world than I found — tikkun, one letter at a time.

May these sounds, older than any of us,
become mine without ceasing to be ours.
May the voice I find in them be my own.
And when I read aloud with others,
may I feel what every learner before me felt:
not an outsider, but one more voice in the room.

Baruch ha-ba — blessed is the one who arrives.
Let us begin.

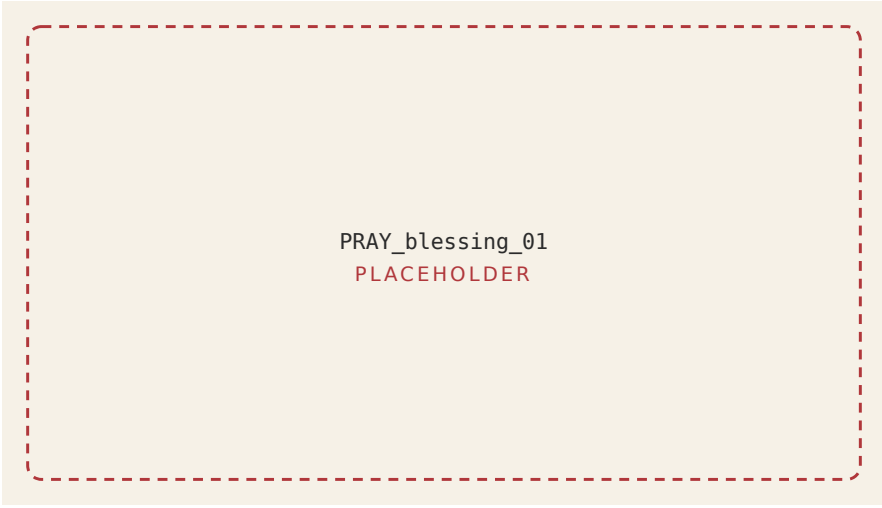

The Priestly Blessing

Numbers 6:24–26. Your first page of Hebrew: fifteen words, thirteen different letters.

יְבָרֶכְךָ יְהוָה וְיִשְׁמְרֶךָ׃

יָאֵר יְהוָה פָּנָיו אֵלֶיךָ וִיחֻנֶּךָּ׃

יִשָּׂא יְהוָה פָּנָיו אֵלֶיךָ וְיָשֵׂם לְךָ שָׁלוֹם׃

Source: data/corpus/registry.json (bless-priestly-1, bless-priestly-2, bless-priestly-3). Status: verified; not proofread by a Hebrew educator. The divine name is shown as written in the source; it is read aloud as “Adonai”.

How to use this book and the app

Each letter has one page. Look at the picture and find the letter hiding in it. Trace the strokes in the order shown, say the sound, and read the three words. Then scan the code, or type the link, to open the same letter in the companion web app, where you can trace on a screen and hear it. Where a recorded voice is not available yet, the app falls back to your device's own Hebrew voice.

The path: the opening prayer and blessing → the alphabet and its 27 letter pages → the vowels → syllable practice → the prayers (every page has its own code) → survival Hebrew for travel and daily life. Read for the congregation first or for Israel first; both paths use the same letters.

Print and cursive. Every letter page shows the printed letter and the Israeli handwritten (ktav yad) form, each with numbered strokes where the data exists. Handwriting stroke data is marked as draft quality: it still needs a native writer's review.

Which pronunciation? Hebrew is read differently in Israel, in Sephardi tradition and in Ashkenazi tradition. The next page explains the differences. The app lets you choose; American synagogues often use the Sephardi values.

Companion app. The page for any letter is https://alef.example.org/#/letters/<letter> and any prayer is https://alef.example.org/#/read/<text>. The host "alef.example.org" is a PLACEHOLDER: those links do not work until a real domain is chosen (one value, book/config.json).

Pronunciation traditions

The same letters, three living ways of reading them aloud. Israeli is the everyday Modern Hebrew of Israel and the default of the Israel track. Sephardi is the liturgical tradition of Spanish-Portuguese and Mizrahi communities. Ashkenazi is the older Central and Eastern European liturgical tradition. The app's congregation setting picks one for the prayers. Data: data/pronunciation/*.json.

Where they part

Bet is b with dagesh and v without.

Kaf is k with dagesh and kh (like loch) without.

Pe is p with dagesh and f without.

The dot decides: right dot = sh, left dot = s.

Dagesh kal hardens begadkefat letters (only bet, kaf, pe change sound in Israeli Hebrew). Dagesh chazak (doubling) is not pronounced in Modern Hebrew.

In General Israeli chet and khaf are one sound [χ]; older Mizrahi speakers keep the pharyngeal chet.

In General Israeli ayin is merged with alef. Pharyngeal ayin survives in Sephardi/Mizrahi tradition; Ashkenazi is silent.

Nearly all Israeli Jews pronounce resh as a uvular fricative; the English r is the typical American carry-over.

Ashkenazi tav without dagesh is s (Shabbos); Sephardi and Israeli tav is always t.

Switching from Israeli/Sephardi to Ashkenazi

Kamatz: a becomes o: Where Israeli/Sephardi reads kamatz gadol as a, Ashkenazi reads it as o (aw). Patach stays a. בָּרוּךְ Barukh / Bawrukh (blessed); שָׁלוֹם shalom / sholom (peace)

Cholam: o stays o, or becomes oy: Choose one value for your community. Most American Ashkenazi readers use o; oy is the Polish/Galician/Chasidic value. אֲדֹנָי Adonai / Adonoy (my Lord (the divine name is read this way))

Tzere: e becomes ei: Ashkenazi tzere is a diphthong. Segol stays e. בֵּית beit / beis (house of); אֱלֹהֵינוּ Eloheinu (our God)

Tav without dagesh: t becomes s: Only tav WITHOUT a dagesh changes. A tav with dagesh is t in every tradition. שַׁבָּת Shabbat / Shabbos (Sabbath); יִתְגַּדַּל Yitgadal / Yisgadal (may it be magnified (Kaddish))

Stress: last syllable becomes second-to-last: Ashkenazi stress is historically penultimate (SHAB-bos, KID-dush). The sources do not say how consistently American prayer reading follows this; that part is inference. שַׁבָּת shabBAT / SHABbos (Sabbath)

Same word, two traditions

Hebrew	Meaning	Israeli	Ashkenazi	What switches
שַׁבָּת	Sabbath	Shabbat	Shabbos	tav, kamatz, stress
בְּרִית	covenant (brit milah)	brit	bris	tav, tzere
אֲדֹנָי	the divine name as read aloud	Adonai	Adonoy	kamatz, cholam
יִתְגַּדַּל	Kaddish, first word	Yitgadal	Yisgadal	tav
בַּת	daughter (bat mitzvah)	bat	bas	tav
אֱמֶת	truth	emet	emes	tav
חָתָן	groom	chatan	chosson	kamatz, tav, stress
בָּרוּךְ	blessed	Barukh	Bawrukh	kamatz
בֵּית	house of	beit	beis	tzere, tav
שָׁלוֹם	peace / hello	shalom	sholom	kamatz, stress

Sounding less like an outsider (Israeli Hebrew)

Resh: back of the throat, not the English r. Common slip: English [ɹ] ("rail") instead of the Israeli uvular [ʁ].
Try: Say kar, rishon, horim, rekhev slowly, keeping the tongue tip down behind the lower teeth.

Five pure, short vowels: no glides. Common slip: Diphthongised English vowels (sha-LOHM with an "oh-oo" glide).
Try: Say lo, bo, lu, li, la with no trailing w or y sound; clip them.

Stress usually falls on the last syllable (milra). Common slip: English-habit stress on the first or second syllable.
Try: Clap the syllables and land the clap on the last one.

Silent shva makes consonant clusters. Common slip: Inserting a short vowel in g-dola, k-tana, z-man.
Try: Say zman, then gdola, holding the two consonants together with no vowel between them.

Do not carry shul pharyngeals into Israeli speech. Common slip: Pharyngeal chet and ayin (the strict synagogue sound).
Try: Say chet as a throat-clearing kh, and read ayin as if it were alef.

Less puff on p, t, k. Common slip: Strongly aspirated English [pʰ tʰ kʰ].
Try: Hold a hand in front of your mouth and say pita, toda, kafe with as little breath as you can.

Statuses and source links for each claim are in the data files; the drills are marked there as unreviewed by a native speaker.

Remember every letter

One card per letter: a shape to see, a sound to say, a silly story that holds both, the look-alike to watch out for, and a word to anchor it. The hook is the memory aid, not the history: the letter-name meanings are real Hebrew words, but the claim that each letter was originally drawn as that object is a popular teaching story. Draft: these hooks and the pointed anchor words have not been checked by a Hebrew teacher. The picture on each card is a labelled placeholder until the image run is done; the faint outlined letter is typeset over it as vector. The same 27 cards are on the cut-out flashcard sheets (alef-mnemonic-flashcards-*.pdf).

The vowels and marks

Hebrew vowels are dots and dashes around the letter, shown here on a bet (or a vav for the two vav-vowels). Modern Israeli Hebrew has five vowel sounds, so several signs share one sound; the traditions differ more. From data/pronunciation/niqqud.json.

Kamatz (kamatz gadol) קָמָץ

below (T-shaped mark under the letter)

Example: אָב father

Israeli [a] a as in father (short, no glide)
Sephardi [a(ː)] a as in father
Ashkenazi [ɔ] aw as in saw (Barukh -> Bawrukh)

Variants: בָּה kamatz + silent he (or alef); same sound as kamatz · בָ֏ Has its own Unicode glyph U+05C7 but most print uses the ordinary kamatz.

In Ashkenazi the alternative values are [u] in open syllables (southern dialects) and [ʌ] (Lithuanian). (English approximation not source-verified)

Patach פַּתַח

Example: בַּיִת house (bayit)

Israeli [a] a as in father
Sephardi [a] a as in father
Ashkenazi [a] a as in father

A patach under a final ע ,ח or ה-with-mappiq is a furtive patach and is read BEFORE the letter (נֹחַ = [no.ax]). (English approximation not source-verified)

Tzere צֵירֵי

below (two horizontal dots)

Example: בֵּן son (ben)

Israeli [ę] e as in bed (a few words and speakers say ei as in they)
Sephardi [e(ː)] e as in bed
Ashkenazi [ej] ei as in they (Polish usage is often like eye)

Variants: בֵי tzere + yod; commonly romanised ei

Pealim: Israeli tzere may be [ei] in some cases, not for all speakers. Ashkenazi [aj] is the Polish variant. (English approximation not source-verified)

Segol סֶגוֹל

below (three dots in a triangle)

Example: סֵפֶר book (sefer)

Israeli [ę] e as in bed
Sephardi [e] e as in bed
Ashkenazi [e] e as in bed (stressed syllables in Polish/Ukrainian usage: ei)

Israeli tzere and segol sound the same; the sign distinction survives only in the spelling. (English approximation not source-verified)

Chirik חִירִיק

below (single dot)

Example: אִמָּא mother (ima)

Israeli [i] i as in machine (short)
Sephardi [i] i as in machine
Ashkenazi [i] i as in machine

Variants: בִי chirik + yod; same sound

Israeli writing usually adds a yod (chirik malei) to disambiguate; same sound. (English approximation not source-verified)

Cholam חוֹלָם

above-left of the letter (chaser) or over a vav (malei)

Example: שָׁלוֹם peace (shalom)

Israeli [o̜] o as in for (no glide)
Sephardi [o(ː)] o as in home
Ashkenazi [o] o as in home (southern German / many American Ashkenazim); oy as in oy vey (Polish/Galician, Chasidic); ow (northern German)

Variants: בֹ cholam without vav: the dot sits above-left of the letter · בוֹ cholam on a vav (vav is a vowel letter here); same sound

Ashkenazi values by sub-dialect: [oj] Polish/Galician, [au] N. German, [ej] Lithuanian, [øi] Hungarian, [o] S. German. (English approximation not source-verified)

Kubutz קֻבּוּץ

below (three diagonal dots)

Example: סֻכָּה sukkah (booth)

Israeli [u] oo as in boot (short)
Sephardi [u] oo as in boot
Ashkenazi [u] oo as in boot; occasionally as in put

Hungarian/Oberlander Ashkenazi [y]; occasional [ʊ]. Same sound as shuruk. (English approximation not source-verified)

Shuruk שׁוּרוּק

a dot inside a vav (the vav is a vowel letter)

Example: סוּס horse (sus)

Israeli [u] oo as in boot
Sephardi [u] oo as in boot
Ashkenazi [u] oo as in boot

The shared id is shuruk; the shape is a vav with a dagesh dot (U+05D5 U+05BC) after a consonant. (English approximation not source-verified)

Shva שְׁוָא

below (two vertical dots)

Example: שְׁמַע hear (Shema)

Israeli [ę] or ∅ (no vowel) e as in begin, or silent
Sephardi [ɛ]~[ę] when vocal, ∅ when silent e as in bed when vocal; silent otherwise
Ashkenazi ∅ colloquially (zman); [e]/[ə] when read strictly in liturgy often dropped (zman); short uh/e when read strictly in prayer

js. Modern Israelis often drop or insert the [e] on phonological grounds, not by the historical rules; no corpus measurement was found. (English approximation not source-verified)

Chataf patach חֲטַף פַּתַח

below (shva + patach)

Example: חֲבֵרָה company / female friend (chavera)

Israeli [a] very short a as in father
Sephardi [a] very short a
Ashkenazi [a] very short a

Reduced vowels appear mostly under guttural letters. (English approximation not source-verified)

Chataf segol חֲטַף סֶגוֹל

below (shva + segol)

Example: אֱמֶת truth (emet)

Israeli [ę] very short e as in bed
Sephardi [e] very short e
Ashkenazi [e] very short e

Short reduced e. (English approximation not source-verified)

Chataf kamatz חֲטַף קָמָץ

below (shva + kamatz)

Example: צָהֳרַיִם noon (tsohorayim)

Israeli [o̜] very short o as in for Sephardi [ɔ] very short o
Ashkenazi [ɔ] very short aw/o

Not to be confused with kamatz katan. (English approximation not source-verified)

Dagesh דָּגֵשׁ

inside the letter (a dot)

Example: שַׁבָּת Shabbat

Israeli hardens bet/kaf/pe to [b][k][p]; gemination absent no sound of its own; makes b, k, p instead of v, kh, f
Sephardi hardens bet/kaf/pe to [b][k][p]; (gemination not covered by the sources fetched) same
Ashkenazi hardens bet/kaf/pe to [b][k][p]; (gemination not covered by the sources fetched) same; also makes tav t instead of s

Variants: בּ hardens begadkefat letters (bet, gimel, dalet, kaf, pe, tav); only bet/kaf/pe change sound in Israeli Hebrew · שּׁ doubling; not heard in Israeli Hebrew · הּ dagesh in a final he: the he is a real [h]

Two things share one sign: dagesh kal (begadkefat hardening) and dagesh chazak (doubling). (English approximation not source-verified)

Shin dot נקודת שין

above the right branch of the letter

Example: שָׁלוֹם peace (shalom)

Israeli [ʃ] sh as in shoe
Sephardi [ʃ] sh as in shoe
Ashkenazi [ʃ] sh as in shoe

The dot is written over the right (first) branch. (English approximation not source-verified)

Sin dot נקודת שין שמאלית

above the left (third) branch of the letter

Example: יִשְׂרָאֵל Israel (Yisrael)

Israeli [s] s as in sun
Sephardi [s] s as in sun
Ashkenazi [s] s as in sun

Lithuanian Ashkenazi historically merged shin and sin as [s] (historical, not current). (English approximation not source-verified)

Reading practice: words

72 short words from the reading-track lessons (data/curriculum/lessons.json), in lesson order, so the first ones use only the letters and vowels taught first. Transliteration comes from the phrasebook where it has the word; entries marked * are machine-generated by the app’s transliterator (Israeli, siddur style) and have not been checked by a native speaker.

Prayers and verses: Shema, Blessing and daily words

70 texts from data/corpus/registry.json in 5 chapters (Shema, Blessing and daily words; The Torah service; The Amidah, Kedushah and closing prayers; Shabbat, Psalms and the table; Hanukkah), each text with its own code. Every text matches its cited source by machine comparison; none has been proofread by a Hebrew educator, and none was typed from memory. The divine name appears as written in the sources and is read “Adonai”. Some texts overlap (the Shema appears alone, within the V’ahavta and in the combined reading). Texts differ by community: each footer names the text tradition (nusach) of its source.

Blessed is the name of the Master of the world; blessed is your crown and your place. May your good will be with your people Israel for ever; show your people the redemption of your right hand in your Temple, bring us of the goodness of your light, and accept our prayer in mercy. May it be your will to lengthen our life in goodness, and let me be counted among the righteous, so that you have mercy on me and guard me and all that is mine and your people Israel's. You feed and sustain all; you rule over all; you rule over kings, and the kingdom is yours. I am a servant of the Holy One, blessed be he, before whom and before whose glorious Torah I bow at every time. Not in any person do I trust, and not on any angel do I rely, but on the God of heaven, who is the God of truth, whose Torah is truth and whose prophets are truth, and who abounds in deeds of goodness and truth. In him I trust, and to his holy and glorious name I utter praises. May it be your will to open my heart to Torah, to fulfil the requests of my heart and the heart of all your people Israel, for good, for life and for peace.

For they bow to vanity and emptiness and pray to a god who does not save; but we bow before the King of kings of kings, the Holy One, blessed be he, who stretches out the heavens and founds the earth, whose seat of glory is in the heavens above and the presence of his might in the loftiest heights. Blessed, praised, glorified, exalted, extolled, honoured, raised and lauded be the name of the Holy One, blessed be he, beyond all the blessings and songs, praises and consolations that are uttered in the world; and say: Amen. May there be great peace from heaven, and life, for us and for all Israel; and say: Amen. He who makes peace in his high places, may he make peace for us and for all Israel; and say: Amen.

Lord of the world, who reigned before any form was created. At the time when all was made by his will, then "King" was his name proclaimed. And after all things have ended, he alone, the awesome one, will reign. And he was, and he is, and he will be, in glory. And he is one, and there is no second, to compare to him or to join with him. Without beginning, without end; to him belong the power and the dominion. And he is my God, and my living redeemer, and the rock of my portion in time of distress. And he is my banner and my refuge, the portion of my cup on the day I call. Into his hand I commit my spirit, when I sleep and when I wake. And with my spirit, my body too: the LORD is with me and I will not fear.

May the living God be magnified and praised; he exists, and his existence is not bound by time. He is one, and there is no unity like his unity; hidden, and without end to his oneness. He has no bodily form and is not a body; his holiness cannot be compared. He preceded everything that was created; first, and with no beginning to his beginning. Behold, he is master of the world to every creature; he shows his greatness and his sovereignty. The abundance of his prophecy he gave to the people he treasured and who are his glory. No one has arisen in Israel like Moses, a prophet who beheld his likeness. A Torah of truth God gave to his people through his prophet, trusted in his house. God will not alter or exchange his law, for ever, for any other. He watches and knows our secrets; he sees the end of a matter at its beginning. He repays a person with kindness according to his deeds; he gives the wicked evil according to his wickedness. At the end of days he will send our anointed one, to redeem those who await the end of his salvation. God will revive the dead in his great kindness; blessed for ever is his praised name.

A Song of Ascents. When the LORD brought back those that returned to Zion, We were like unto them that dream. Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing; then said they among the nations: 'The LORD hath done great things with these.' The LORD hath done great things with us; we are rejoiced. Turn our captivity, O LORD, as the streams in the dry land. They that sow in tears Shall reap in joy. Though he goeth on his way weeping that beareth the measure of seed, He shall come home with joy, bearing his sheaves.
